

Dear Dan,

I want to give you a very belated thank you for speaking to the Mesa County Women's Network this summer. We received such compliments on your talk and it has raised the bar for future programs.

Our membership raved about your keynote address "From Fed Up to Fired Up in 5 Seconds Flat." Your mix of humor, storytelling, good 'ol common sense and fresh ideas made for an entertaining hour of information. So often marketing can be bland, but your presentation definitely added spice to the mix and our membership appreciated all you had to say.

Again, I am so grateful that you were able to visit our "little" networking group in Western Colorado and I hope that we can have you back soon. Here are a couple of notes from our members:

"I certainly thought Dan was entertaining and personable as he addressed our large room full of members and guests. There were definitely some gems in his presentation that stuck with me, things that specifically I need to be reminded of to stay on track in order to keep heading toward my goals. I think one of the most important points in his presentation for me was to Silence My Critics (and often times that means me!) Due to the isolation that therapists tend find themselves in a good idea can simply get swept under the rug. That got me to thinking about the need to connect with trusted folks to share my ideas and get feedback as well as hear input that can help me get a broader perspective and generate plans I would normally dismiss."

"I liked Dan's take on cheese flexibility. It was a good thing to bring up being flexible, I think we all pick our battles, cheese might be one of them, it might not. But, if you don't try being flexible and trying new and different things then you will never know if you could accept the change. And you have to be open minded to the change too, not just trying it to appear flexible but to actually BE flexible."
